FROM all accounts, Mr. Bevan and his followers are doing well in the British elections. Their weekend meetings up and down the country have been crowded and their industrial audiences are said to have been enthusiastic. Nothing much can yet be deduced from this — except that Bevan has a case and knows how to put it without forfeiting his place as a loyal member of the Labour Party. The position appears to be roughly this: The Party is losing ground throughout the electorate and assessments made up from direct observations of the constituencies and from mass observation polls, suggest that if a general election were held at any time between now and November, the Party would lose heavily and a strong Tory government would be assured, but in that case, Bevan's group would come out as a firm core with big trade union support around which the Party in opposition would be compelled to range itself.

THIS, of course, is speculation. People's minds today are made up and unmade by a system of sporadic shocks rather than by careful thinking or appraisal of the acts of Government. Even such an event as the McLean-Burgess mystery, into which the press has woven enough innuendoes to clothe a whole regiment of rascals, has its frightening effect upon an electorate subjected day in day out to the demoralizing neurosis of the cold war. Such occasions are dangerous to the Labour Party, and still more to the Bevan heretics. The left-wingers of the Party had another shock the other day, when one of their number, Mrs. Felton, was removed from an important local Government post by the responsible Minister, Dr. Dalton, because it was found that she had been on a little trip to North Korea; her hobnobbing with the 'Reds' was more than even Dalton could tolerate.

ON the other hand, evidence to support Bevan's views on rearmament and its effect upon social welfare is accumulating fast. The Secretary of the powerful Amalgamated Engineering Union, Mr. R. Gardner, has just warned the Government and the Trade Union Council that wage demands must soon become general and peremptory "because it seems hopeless to expect anything more drastic being done about profits and prices." Now Mr. Gardner, with the backing of 820,000 trade unionists, is well known in Labour circles as a moderate, anti-Communist, supporter of the Government. His warning is in terms similar to those of Mr. Bevan and may be taken as representative of the bulk of British Trade Union opinion. "And the rise in retail prices has not yet reached its peak," said Sir Hartley Shawcross. The effects of rearmament are being felt in increasing tempo by all classes of the community. There is now a serious shortage of steel and a consequent big rise in steel prices, with shipbuilding, railway works, housing, all likely to be seriously affected.

THE pull to the Right brought about by an international ideological conflict which has come down to every household, is therefore balanced by a pull to the Left, brought about by the feeling, especially among such workers' leaders as Mr. Bevan, that the ideological conflict is being mishandled and cannot end in a Western democratic victory as long as mass social welfare is required to foot a rearmament bill which in any case may fall far short of the promised security. The question which pull is stronger — to the Right or to the Left — has yet to be answered in Britain. If the rest of the world can be taken as a pointer, the Rightists will have at least a temporary triumph. Whether Socialism, in the Western sense, will ever be able to recover is still another and a graver question.

SHOTS FIRED AT EIN GEV
TEL AVIV, Monday. — Ten shots were fired from Nuhel village on Ein Gev at 2 o'clock this morning. A spokesman said here today that an hour later an unidentified aircraft flew over Ein Gev from the north to the south-east.

Baghdad Jews Seized on Arms Charges

BAGHDAD, Monday (Reuters). — The Secretary of the Jewish Community Council, Dr. Habasi, was detained by the police here today with seven other Jews, most of whom have renounced Iraqi nationality and are waiting to leave for Israel. The police said they had found "huge quantities" of high explosives, hand grenades, time bombs, guns and revolvers in several houses, including that of the Secretary. Several "highly important documents" were found in the Secretary's house, according to the Police.

An ANA report from Baghdad claimed the evidence showed "the existence of a Zionist terrorist group in Iraq." An AP report said the store of arms and explosives, claimed to be "sufficient to blow up the whole of Baghdad," was uncovered in the Ezra Daoud Synagogue. Military squads with mine detectors were called in by the police to inspect explosive dumps in carefully concealed storerooms under the building. Police have been rounding up members of the Baghdad Zionist Society for questioning and a number of persons — including two women — have been arrested, the report said.

Government to Build 48,000 Home Units

Twelve million dollars will be released soon for the acquisition of materials for 48,000 two-room dwelling units, whose construction is being planned by an inter-ministerial commission appointed by the Government some time ago. It was reported by "Hador" yesterday. The housing will be available to persons who immigrated before January 1, 1950, and registration is expected to begin soon. Actual construction will be started in about a year and a half. Under the scheme, housing projects will be set up in the city, town and country. The plans provide for all conveniences, and are similar to those for cooperative houses. The price of the flat has not yet been set, but it is understood that applicants will be required to deposit IL500 to IL600 at the time of registration, and IL12 to IL15 monthly between registration and occupancy. Large mortgages on easy terms will be extended by the Government.

ZOA Asks American Aid, Ends Session

ATLANTIC CITY, Monday (UP). — The newly elected President of the Zionist Organization of America, Mr. Benjamin G. Browdy, yesterday outlined to delegates at the Z.O.A. annual convention a comprehensive programme to aid Israel. The programme included a proposal that the Z.O.A. and the Israel Government work out an agreement for sending 200 highly-trained technicians and experts to Israel and a plan for enlisting American capital for investment in Israel industry.

A substitute motion presented by Mr. J. M. Alkow, of the South African Zionist region, recording disapproval "of any effort of any party outside Israel to interfere in the internal affairs of the State of Israel," was defeated before the Z.O.A. decided yesterday to "strengthen General Zionism throughout the world."

Huleh Resolution
The convention passed a resolution calling upon President Truman and Mr. Acheson to "use their good offices to the end that the U.S. delegation to the U.N. takes the initiative in ensuring that the U.N.'s machinery in the area uses its authority to remove obstacles in the way of full immediate implementation of the Huleh reclamation project."

Another resolution, backing Israel's claim for $1,500m. reparations from Germany, asked that the U.S. Government should not hand over full powers to any German Government without express reservations having been made for the payment of the reparations.

Bill on Women's Rights Tabled

The Equal Rights for Women Bill, which would assure women equality before the law and equality with men in all questions of personal status, but which would leave marriage and divorce under the jurisdiction of the religious courts, was tabled in the Knesset last night by the Minister of Justice, Mr. Pinhas Rosen, who said the law was designed to provide equal responsibilities as well as equal rights for women. A private bill introduced by Mrs. Rahel Kagan, proposing changes in marriage, divorce and alimony proceedings as well, will be read in the House this morning.

Mr. Rosen explained the decision to leave the prevailing marriage-divorce arrangements untouched on the grounds that the conflicting traditions of the various communities in Israel would make it impossible to implement changes in this field at present, and cause unbridgeable rifts in the Yishuv.

He also said that the retention of authority in this field by the religious courts was according to agreement reached at the time of the formation of the original Knesset coalition.

Divorce Laws

The draft legislation, however, makes bigamy a criminal offense in Israel for Jews and Christians, and requires the agreement of both parties to a divorce, requiring proof of serious offence in cases where divorces are implemented without the agreement of the wife. These clauses affect only the Jewish population. Men and women would be made equal in their claim to the guardianship of their children in cases of divorce or separation. At present, relatives on the paternal side are considered the "natural" guardians, Mr. Rosen explained.

If the law is passed, men and women will share legal responsibility of each other's support, as well as for the maintenance of offspring. At present, only a man is legally bound to support his family. The draft legislation, however, limits the woman's responsibilities, requiring the wife to support the family only where the husband is unable to work and where the wife possesses property or is employed.

Final Congress Vote Results Tomorrow

TEL AVIV, Monday. — The counting of the votes in the Zionist Congress elections here today brought the total to about 80 per cent of the votes cast and showed no change in Mafpi strength, but a slight decrease in that of Mafpi Hamizrah. Mafpi Hamizrah gained slightly in today's count, but since the final results from Jerusalem have not yet been tabulated their main strength has not yet been assessed.

Votes have been counted to date from almost 400 voting districts. Of those examined in today's two-hour meeting of the Central Elections Committee here, Mafpi got about 40 per cent, and Mafpi Hamizrah about 17 per cent. Hapoel Hamizrabi polled 18 per cent of the votes. The final count will be made on Wednesday afternoon, at which time official results from Jerusalem are expected to be completed.

500 RAILWAYMEN STILL ON STRIKE

HAIFA, Monday. — The unofficial strike of over 500 railway employees in Haifa, which began last Wednesday, continues unabated. The Haifa Labour Council's repeated declarations that it will not act on the workers' demands until they return to their jobs, have not been heeded by the strikers.

Chagall Seeks New Inspiration Here
HAIFA, Monday. — Israel's leading painters greeted their famous colleague, Marc Chagall, with enthusiastic warmth when he arrived with his wife in the a.s. Kedmah this morning. The Mayor of Haifa, Mr. A. Hushi, and his deputies went aboard to welcome the artist.

"I came here to seek inspiration," Mr. Chagall, who speaks a rich Yiddish, told a group of newspapermen. "On my last trip 20 years ago, when I was invited by the late Mayor of Tel Aviv, Meir Dizengoff, my impressions impelled me to paint Biblical subjects."

Asked how the Jewish renaissance in Israel has influenced his art, the painter said his exhibition here showed that better than he could explain in words. He dispensed personal questions with the observation: "My face answers all the questions. I am a modest man." Right now he is three-quarters in a "Biblical mood," he added. He said he would stay a month.

House Members Immunity Bill 'Open to Abuse'

Immunity from searches for homes of Knesset members might serve foreign intelligence organizations taking advantage of this privilege and setting up their headquarters in such places, declared the Prime Minister yesterday in an unexpected short speech during the Knesset debate on the Members' Immunity Law. This was his first appearance in the House since his return from the United States.

Mr. Ben Gurion said he regretted that such a bill had been proposed, as it offered immunity to houses that might be abused by spies, and immunities to their papers and documents, which might belong to an enemy who intended to invade the country and to occupy it. "This is a real danger, and not a fairy tale for children," Mr. Ben Gurion said. "This is the reality we are living in now," he added.

State's Security

He said it was curious that the Knesset should have asked for immunity for its members now, on the eve of its dissolution. As he understood it, there was need only of immunity for speeches and votes by the members in the Knesset, and nothing more. Knesset members' houses could well serve as centres for the assembly of the state, Ben Gurion repeated. "It might also be the house of a cabinet member or of the Prime Minister," Mr. M. Yaari (Mafpi) interjected.

Mr. Ben Gurion: I don't know why Mr. Yaari should be getting hot under the collar. "I am a simple person," Ben Gurion continued, "and I cannot know who will be a Knesset member tomorrow." Finally, Mr. Ben Gurion pointed out, that he was specially opposed to the second paragraph of the bill extending immunity from searches to the homes and personal belongings and papers kept by Knesset members as this might endanger the security of the State.

Persians Threaten Closure If Money Claim Is Not Met

ABADAN, Monday, (Reuters). — The Persians will seize the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's installations if by tomorrow night the Company delegates have not given a satisfactory reply to the demand for 75 per cent of proceeds since March 20, Hussein Makki, right-hand man to Premier Mosaddeq, announced here today.

Mosaddeq said the first stage of the takeover would be an order to Mr. Ross, General Manager of the Refinery, to bring the refinery to a standstill. The A.I.O.C.'s General Manager in Khuzistan province, Mr. Eric Drake, returned to Khorram Shahr, near Abadan, today from a flying visit to Teheran where he held consultations with the British Ambassador, Sir Francis Shepherd, and the British oil company's delegation.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said in London this morning that the Persian request for 75 per cent of the proceeds of the oil industry since the Nationalization Act was passed on March 20 was unacceptable in its present form. He added that the demand was not clear but that the British Government understood the claim to require all revenues since March 20 to be handed over on the understanding that 35 per cent would be earmarked for future compensation.

The Cabinet today reviewed the reply which the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company officials now in Teheran will submit to the Persian authorities tomorrow in answer to their ultimatum.

Reports from Teheran that the British Ambassador, Sir Francis Shepherd, last night gave the Prime Minister, Dr. Mohammad Mossaddeq, a personal message from Mr. Morrison were confirmed by the Foreign Office today.

Third Force Gets Firm Hold in French Election

PARIS, Monday (Reuters). — General Charles de Gaulle's right-wing party swept to top place in France's general elections today but could not break the overall majority of the "third force" alliance which has governed since 1948. Communists suffered heavily from the new electoral law. With nearly all the returns in, they held more than half the seats they had in the old Assembly, though they still polled the greatest number of votes. Observers have said, voters were apparently impressed by the Communist intensive "peace" and "anti-American" election campaign.

Semi-official figures up to noon giving 464,000 from 563 out of the 627 seats showed: Gaullists 107 (23 in the old Assembly), Communists 96 (183), Socialists 96 (99), M.R.P. 77 (145) Radicals 33 (91), Moderates 100 (81) other 4 (30).

Carney Named To Command London Pleased By French Results

PARIS Monday (Reuters). — General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, today named Admiral Robert Carney (56) as Commander in Chief of Allied Forces in Southern Europe. General Eisenhower also announced that Admiral Carney would also act initially as commander of Allied naval forces allocated to the Supreme Commander in Southern Europe. He will have a separate staff in that capacity and will exercise command over the U.S. Sixth Fleet "and such other naval forces as may be allocated."

An official British spokesman said today that the British Mediterranean fleet did not come under Admiral Carney's new command in Southern Europe. Supreme headquarters also announced these appointments: General Maurizio de Castiglioni, aged 62, of the Italian army as Commander of Allied armed forces in Southern Europe; General David M. Echlatter, aged 50, United States Air Force, as Commander of Allied air forces in Southern Europe.

There is likely to be a rightward shift in the new Assembly since Socialists and Popular Republicans will need conservative support to form a majority while centre parties will have a majority. Whether dominated by rightists or left-centre, the Assembly will provide a stable base for a parliamentary regime.

Fears of a deadlock leading to early new elections have disappeared. Altogether, results show the provinces and countryside are both more conservative and more democratic than Paris, where Communists and Gaullists scored at the expense of moderate parties. The government knew this, which explains its indifference to foreign nervousness. It is thought likely France will now give stronger support to Atlantic Pact measures and show less tolerance of Communist sabotage of the arms programme.

Communists Hit Back in Korea

TOKYO, Monday (Reuters). — Communists counter-attacked in Korea again today and held up the U.N. advance almost everywhere. The Communists were well entrenched in ground suited to defensive actions. Their aircraft were also unusually active.

On the east central front, however, Allied infantry went forward up to three kms. The mounting resistance strengthened rumours that the Chinese were preparing a counter-offensive all along the front, this time possible with their long-awaited air cover. June 25, anniversary of the invasion of South Korea, is rumoured as a possible date.

Eliashiv Presents Credentials

MOSCOW, Monday (Reuters). — The new Israeli Minister, Dr. Simha Eliashiv, presented his credentials to the Soviet President, M. Nikolai Shvernik, at a brief ceremony at the Kremlin today.

While presenting his credentials, Dr. Eliashiv addressed Mr. Shvernik in Hebrew while Chief of Protocol Kulashenkov interpreted. Dr. Eliashiv said Israel remembers the aid she received from the U.S.S.R. in the establishment of the State, and described the problems facing Israel, expressing the hope that the Soviet Union, which he said, "is carrying on peaceful construction of extraordinary proportions, will manifest understanding of the tasks and the process of Israel construction."

Expanding Histadrut's Inner Conflict

By Our Labour Correspondent

THE Jewish Labour movement in Israel has arrived at a stage at which it is carried forward by the momentum of its own growth. No special propaganda is needed to bring the bulk of the new immigrants into the fold of the Histadrut. The very fact that the overwhelming majority of the newcomers are have-nots places them in the camp of Labour, even if many of them are very far from understanding the intricate ideological issues discussed today in the inner circles of the two leading parties. The institutions of the Histadrut are, moreover, vital instruments in the process of fitting the immigrants into the life of Israel.

To a large extent the Histadrut or at least some of its main institutions, like the labour exchanges and the authorities which settle immigrants on the land, works today as an extension of government services. It is therefore not surprising that according to the latest figures 70 per cent of all the workers in Israel were organized in the Histadrut at the beginning of 1951. But the influence of the Labour movement is even greater than this figure indicates. The families of the workers must be included as living in the same political and social climate. Many of the children of other sections of the population are drawn into the orbit of the Labour movement by youth organizations. And with immigration proceeding rapidly, and the immigrants being mostly without means, the Histadrut will continue to grow unless something quite unpredictable happens.

Split at the Core
But this imposing structure is threatened from within. The results of the recent Mapam conference and the split in the Kibbutz Hameuhad are the most striking signs of a rift in the Labour movement, which has steadily widened during the last few years. The Mapam conference had two important results: First of all there was the abolition of the three separate sections within the party, Hashomer Hatzair, Achdut Avodah and Poale Zion, which until now acted as separate units within the common framework. In a party which upholds the slogan of "collective thinking," this means that the strongest driving force among them, the Hashomer Hatzair, will get the upper hand. In this way, the party will set more and more closely in the Marxist-Leninist patterns. Even if ideologies as different as those of Mapam and Mapai only had to be translated into practical politics within the framework of the Histadrut, difficulties would abound. They do abound today in the daily work of the trade unions and in the Executive of the Histadrut. But it is much more dangerous if these differences break into the very core of the Labour movement in Israel.

There can be no parallel for these developments in any other country because no other country has collective settlements like Israel. When the Mapai members left the Histadrut some weeks ago and this walked out of the Kibbutz Hameuhad, it was a much more serious thing than the destruction of the framework of an organization. It is always feasible to build up a new organization and sometimes the separation of "competing churches" is healthier than the endless quarrels when people with opposing views live together.

Mixed Settlements
The meeting of the Mapai sector of the Kibbutz Hameuhad at Kinneret which followed the split, adopted a plan to set up another Kibbutz organization together with the Hever Hakevutzim, the framework of a number of smaller collective settlements, mostly growing at an unprecedented rate.

The agricultural settlements have always been the most vital and original part of the Jewish Labour movement. Here, the common experience of both parties has held together people of different political views because friendship and common experience proved stronger than party strife. Now, however, the rift in the movement has broken out in the crisis in the Kibbutz Hameuhad at a time when members of Mapai and Mapam still carry on their joint work in the other institutions of the Histadrut. This, and the consolidation of Mapam at its last conference, confront the Labour movement with the bitterest internal crisis it has yet had to face, just when its membership and influence are growing at an unprecedented rate.

Subtle Psychology
"I LIVE Today for Tomorrow" (Edison), based on Ernst Lothar's novel, "The Mills of God," is an outstanding human drama. After 23 years of happy marriage, a judge (Frederick March) learns that his wife (Florence Eldridge) is suffering from an incurable and excruciatingly painful disease. The husband suffers greatly because he must hide the awful truth from his wife and young daughter (Geraldine Brooks); then the wife learns of her impending doom, and tortures herself by the attempt to conceal her knowledge from her husband. During a deeply moving second honeymoon, the judge, under emotional stress, attempts a mercy killing to the police. The problem of euthanasia — of legal guilt and moral guiltlessness — and vice versa — is dramatically discussed. The film is uncommonly subtle in its psychology, and is far from cheap melodrama. Frederick March gives the performance of his life, and one of the greatest ever witnessed on the screen. Florence Eldridge is superb. FRANGO

At the Cinema

TWO-THIRDS of "Twelve O'Clock High" (Orion, Jerusalem), an excellent documentary, tells about the training in Britain of a U.S. air-force group, being prepared by General Gregory Peck for the bombardment of Germany. There are disciplinary problems, and, of course, friction between officers who are tense with anticipation of the major operations ahead. The climax comes when the General suffers nervous shock on being prevented from flying with the second wave of bombers after having led the first attack. The dialogue of this story of "men without women" is economical, and free of propaganda for American democracy.

After 23 years of happy marriage, a judge (Frederick March) learns that his wife (Florence Eldridge) is suffering from an incurable and excruciatingly painful disease. The husband suffers greatly because he must hide the awful truth from his wife and young daughter (Geraldine Brooks); then the wife learns of her impending doom, and tortures herself by the attempt to conceal her knowledge from her husband. During a deeply moving second honeymoon, the judge, under emotional stress, attempts a mercy killing to the police. The problem of euthanasia — of legal guilt and moral guiltlessness — and vice versa — is dramatically discussed. The film is uncommonly subtle in its psychology, and is far from cheap melodrama. Frederick March gives the performance of his life, and one of the greatest ever witnessed on the screen. Florence Eldridge is superb. FRANGO

THE JERUSALEM POST

Alleged Zealot Credo Calls For Religious Dictatorship

More than 1,000 documents allegedly found on May 19 in an early morning search of the Sinai Yeshiva in the Beit Ahim quarter of Jerusalem were submitted yesterday by the prosecution at the preliminary inquiry into charges of a zealot conspiracy. Only those documents which are of special importance will be read in court.

The exhibits range from neatly-typed agendas to almost illegible scraps of paper.

One of the documents, allegedly found in the room of Shimon Ba'dany, one of the suspects, in the Beit Ahim Yeshiva, expressed what would appear to be the credo of the alleged Zealots.

A religious government must be established in Israel, based not on coalitions, but on the Justice of God and the Torah. Dictatorship, and not democracy, is the best guarantee of the happy State. There are many religious Jews, who, ignorant of the truth, have set back passively. They do not deserve to be accorded rights. It is only through zeal that the goal is achieved.

Another of the exhibits, entitled "Organization of Jewish Fighters," stated that the Way of the Torah must be imposed on Israel and other countries. Force will be used to fight all violations. A "note" appended to the document says that the Torah sanctions the possession of stolen goods, when necessary, but forbids murder.

Groups and Cells
The same document outlines the movement's structure. A five-man directorate made decisions by majority vote. The organization was divided into "groups" and "cells."

The police also found an account, allegedly written by one of the zealots, about the success of their activities. Damage had been caused in 15 operations it said, and the closing on Saturday of a cafe near the Jaffa station in Jerusalem was cited as a particular success.

The same report also referred to a "barbaric regime," which was declared after two members, caught by the police, had been sentenced to death by the "barbaric regime."

According to these documents, the organization had been in existence since 1948. Its officers, and particularly "Uri," "Gavriel," "Shabetai," "Fania," and "Amichai," were not to be named.

They were to show no signs of recognition in the street, and were to meet in secret places. Each one had to be prepared to leave the city immediately in case of "crisis" or "emergency."

300 Buses Bought From French Firm

LYDDA AIRPORT, Monday (ITM). — The three-man delegation from the French auto firm of Chausson left Israel here this morning after concluding final negotiations with the Government for the sale of 300 buses as well as spare parts. The formal agreement between the two countries will be signed in the near future, it is expected.

According to the terms, the French firm will supply 300 buses per month until local factories become capable of assembling the vehicles here from parts sent from Paris. The glass call for the first 1,500 buses during a three-year period. A sample vehicle brought to Israel a month ago has been tested and found suitable for local conditions, it is understood.

Haifa Bus Curfew Under Fire

HAIFA, Monday. — The Municipality's approval of the stoppage of all urban bus service at 8:30 p.m. came under fire today by representatives of the Hotel, Cafe and Restaurant Owners Association and of the cinema owners. They were astonished, they said, that the Municipality had not consulted them, since the entire catering business was severely affected. Tourism and the larger hotels were also bound to suffer at the height of the season.

Cinema owners warned that the 8 o'clock performances would have to be cancelled and the Municipality would lose revenue from the entertainment tax and the social service rate levied on consumptions in restaurants and cafes.

The Minister of Justice, Mr. P. Rosen, proposed that the entire first paragraph should be amended, so as to leave out the sentence giving complete immunity for the members outside the Knesset. His proposal, however, was also rejected.

In the discussion on the second paragraph, prohibiting searches in homes and among the personal belongings of Knesset members, except for the purpose of customs control, Mr. Masar (Orthodox Bloc) proposed to strike out that part of the sentence permitting the customs officials to examine cheques and securities.

The second reading of the bill was then interrupted to enable the House to discuss the Bill of Women's Equal Rights. This aroused strong opposition on the part of Herut and Mapam, who claimed that this constituted an interference by the Government in the activities of the Knesset. A stormy debate followed between Deputy Speaker Nir, who was in the Chair, and the Herut and Mapam benches, who claimed that voting on a bill cannot be interrupted.

A 30-minute recess was called to permit the Mapam and Herut parties to consult. Following the consultation, Mr. Ben Aharon (Mapam) asked that the question of Government interference with the activities of the Knesset be discussed by the House Committee.

SHIRT FACTORY STILL CLOSED
HAIFA, Monday. — The Weiss and Link shirt factory, largest and most modern of its kind in the country, which its owners closed last month after a dispute with their 130 employees, has not been bought up by the Ata Textile Works (an erroneously reported on June 8), it is learned here.

The firm, which has been operating on a contract with Ata, manufacturing large quantities of shirts and pyjamas from Ata-made cloth, is now paying off its workers, and the highly mechanized equipment is idle.

The closure was brought about chiefly by the prolonged go-slow tactics of the workers, who lowered output in protest against the management's refusal to accept a department following the arrival of mechanical training machines.

There is no hope for the reopening of the plant in the near future, the owner said today.

Mekorot to Supply Petah Tikva Water
PETAH TIKVA, Monday. — The Municipality has signed a provisional agreement with the Mekorot Water Company for the supply of water to this township. The Council was told at its meeting last night. The area has suffered recently from a severe water shortage, and it is hoped that the laying of a two-kilometer pipeline from Rosh Ha'ayin by Mekorot will ease the situation.

The Council also decided to invest 11,100,000 in a sewage and drainage scheme in the industrial zone. Fifty per cent of this sum is to be obtained through a loan while the other half will be borne by the factories in the area and by the Bellinson Hospital, which will also be included in the network.

FIRE SPREADS OVER 150 DUNAMS
PETAH TIKVA, Monday (ITM). — Fire brigades from Tel Aviv and Ramat Gan were summoned here to help the local brigade deal with a fire which spread quickly over 150 dunams of grass and abandoned orange groves in the industrial area near the Bellinson Hospital this afternoon. The cause of the fire and the extent of the damage is not yet known.

Immunity Bill

and privileges to the Knesset members.

At the beginning of the discussion there were a number of close votes on proposals to change the wording of the first paragraph of the bill. Mr. Argov (Mapam) and Mr. Harari (Progressive) proposed that in the sentence "immunity... for acts done in fulfillment of their duties or with a view to fulfilling their duties..." the second part should be omitted.

Mr. Argov argued that if a Knesset Member killed somebody while speaking in a Knesset session, this part of the bill might be construed as giving him immunity from punishment. Mr. Bar Yehuda (Mapam) declared that the sentence had been inserted to make sure that nobody would hinder a Knesset member from doing his duty. Three votes were taken on this proposal, which was, finally, defeated by a majority of 50 to 46.

The Minister of Justice, Mr. P. Rosen, proposed that the entire first paragraph should be amended, so as to leave out the sentence giving complete immunity for the members outside the Knesset. His proposal, however, was also rejected.

In the discussion on the second paragraph, prohibiting searches in homes and among the personal belongings of Knesset members, except for the purpose of customs control, Mr. Masar (Orthodox Bloc) proposed to strike out that part of the sentence permitting the customs officials to examine cheques and securities.

The second reading of the bill was then interrupted to enable the House to discuss the Bill of Women's Equal Rights. This aroused strong opposition on the part of Herut and Mapam, who claimed that this constituted an interference by the Government in the activities of the Knesset. A stormy debate followed between Deputy Speaker Nir, who was in the Chair, and the Herut and Mapam benches, who claimed that voting on a bill cannot be interrupted.

A 30-minute recess was called to permit the Mapam and Herut parties to consult. Following the consultation, Mr. Ben Aharon (Mapam) asked that the question of Government interference with the activities of the Knesset be discussed by the House Committee.

France 'Key Nation' in NATO—Bradley

WASHINGTON, Monday (AP). — General Omar Bradley said last night he was "much impressed" on his recent trip to Europe by the military and industrial progress of France. France is now the key nation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, he added.

The Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff reported French military morale is "improved" and French production is now 135 per cent of the pre-war level.

Speaking on the Defense Department's television programme, General Bradley said many of the Treaty nations could create additional units "for the defence of Western Europe against Communism" if they had weapons. The Korean war had slowed the flow of weapons to Europe but supplies would be larger by autumn when the speed-up in production is felt.

There is still a large gap between the size of General Eisenhower's forces at present and the numbers he needs, General Bradley said. Each nation contributing ground forces to the NATO Army would be expected to contribute more tactical air support. Military men found "better and closer support," he said, when the air cover was of the same nationality as the ground troops.

Two Suspects Claim Police Cruelty

The police were bluntly attacked by two zealot suspects recently released on bail, David and Yaakov Aharonov, in evidence presented yesterday to the Knesset committee investigating alleged brutality at the Jolamleh detention camp.

Addas claimed that as soon as he was pushed off the truck that brought him to Jolamleh, he heard voices shouting: "Run," "Stop," "Run." During physical exercises, he and his comrades were ordered to drop to the ground, jump up and continue running, he claimed.

The witness declared that he thought that on one of these occasions, a guard stepped on a prisoner, while the latter was on the ground.

Elihu Rafai's accusations that he had been struck were corroborated by the witness. He also supported the allegation that Daniel Rafai had been beaten by Samuel Weiss until, the policeman's stick broke.

The suspects were not permitted to pray together and letters they wrote never reached home, Addas claimed.

Charge-sheets were not presented to the accused until four to five days after they were arrested, Addas told Mr. David Hacohen, a Committee member.

The other witness at the session testified that he was thrown into a special confinement cell in the Jolamleh camp, he complained to the committee about his behavior. Aharonov declared that, exhausted by the hunger strike in the Jolamleh prison, he found it impossible to run and was finally, by the constant interference of policemen, thrown to the ground.

The witness said he recalled distinctly that he was beaten by one of the constables while being led out of the confinement cell in the morning. When he stood still during exercises because of exhaustion, he was told to drop to the ground. Aharonov claimed that he was also forced to run because he had refused to say "Thank you, Mr. Policeman," the witness charged.

JERUSALEM M.D.A. BACK ON DUTY
The Magen David Adom in Jerusalem resumed its services on a temporary basis at 10 o'clock last night. The organization will continue functioning during the next fortnight while a committee appointed by Dr. A. Ben-Zur, the District Representative, tries to solve the M.D.A.'s budgetary difficulties.

Jerusalem Labour For Equal Ice Price
The Jerusalem Histadrut Labour Council at its regular meeting last night decided to propose to the authorities that in case it should be necessary to increase the price of ice in the capital, the cost should be equalized throughout the country.

Historian Challenges Scrolls
The authenticity of the Dead Sea Scrolls should be investigated by a commission of scholars, Israelis and non-Israelis, Jews and Christians, to be invited by the Government of Israel. This was urged by Professor Solomon Zeitlin, of Dropsie College, Philadelphia, lecturing at the Hebrew University last night. Since the first publications on the Dead Sea Scrolls, three years ago, Professor Zeitlin has been claiming — against Prof. E. L. Sukenik, Prof. W. F. Albright, Prof. Millar Burrows and others — that these Scrolls cannot belong to the pre-Christian era, and that the circumstances of their discovery need further clarifying.

Dead Questioned
If the Scrolls are not from the pre-Christian era, but of Medieval authorship, they have no importance for inter-testamental studies and the history of the origin of Christianity, and both their value and their interest would be considerably reduced.

In his lecture last night, as in his articles on the subject in the "Jewish Quarterly Review," of which he is editor, Professor Zeitlin argued that internal evidence — palaeography, orthography and terminology — leaves no doubt that the various scrolls were composed in the Middle Ages, and not during the Second Jewish Commonwealth. Nor was there any direct archaeological evidence to support their pre-Christian character, as the scholars who had published them had not discovered.

As to their origin, Prof. Zeitlin doubted whether they had actually been found by Beduin at the Abu Fakhra cave near the Dead Sea, as believed by Prof. Sukenik and others, on the authority of the Syrian Bishop and middlemen from whom the accounts regarding the discovery were contradictory. Prof. Zeitlin was of the opinion that at least some of the scrolls came from the ancient Jewish libraries in Hebron, which had been sacked

Israel Goods For Turkish Fair

A fair selection of Israel goods is to be shown at the International Fair to be held at Izmir, Turkey, on August 20, it has been announced.

The exhibition is being organized by the Israel Manufacturers' Association in conjunction with the Ministry of Trade and Industry, and it is felt that there are good prospects of developing Israel's export trade with Turkey.

The Fair is scheduled to last one month. Persons interested in exhibiting goods should communicate with the Permanent Exhibition Committee, Israel Manufacturers' Association, 13 Rehov Monistore, Tel Aviv.

Progressives Open Conference Tonight
The two-day second national conference of the Progressive Party will begin this evening in the Ohel Shalom Hall in Tel Aviv. About 350 delegates elected by 130 local party branches are expected to attend the conference which will be the first since the party's founding convention in 1948.

The agenda includes a review of the past three years' activities and a discussion of the party's future programme. The question of affiliation with the General Zionists is not scheduled for discussion, since the small group favouring such a union failed to get the necessary support, a Party spokesman declared.

Lack of Criticism
As a result of this immunity from expert criticism, companies in Britain and the United States, and in England, have rather lost touch with the realities of the world in which they operate. They are often quick enough to see the faults and weaknesses of a competitor, but this always remains a private view. The practices and policies of the oil industry are not exposed to the same

The man is wearing a light-colored shirt and is positioned behind the machinery, which features several large, dark, circular components that look like flywheels or large valves. The scene is dimly lit, with the man's face and shirt providing a focal point of light against the dark background of the machine.
